1. Project Overview

Project SOLRA was delivered by Helping Hands Ceylon Charitable Organization on 11th September 2026 at Kalyanipura Rural College in Weli Oya, Mullaitivu District.

The project was developed in response to a longstanding need identified by the Helping Hands Ceylon: access to a reliable and sustainable water supply. Alongside the infrastructure intervention, the project supported 140 children with educational supplies and delivered activities focused on wellbeing, creativity and cyber safety.

2. Community and School Context

Kalyanipura is a remote rural community in the Mullaitivu District with a complex history shaped by Sri Lanka's conflict. During the war years, the wider Kalyanipura and Weli Oya area was affected by militarisation and military training activities, and Kalyanipura later became the site of a formal military training school.

Today, the area is home to a new generation of children. Kalyanipura Rural College serves students from the surrounding rural community, where access to basic infrastructure and essential services remains an important concern.

The contrast between the area's past and present is significant. The school community's needs today are centred on education, health, safety, dignity and opportunity. Reliable water is one of the basic conditions required to support these needs.

3. The Need Identified

According to information shared by the school and local stakeholders, the water supply issue had been brought to the attention of relevant authorities on several occasions over the years. However, a sustainable solution had not been established.

For the school, the absence of a reliable water facility affected a basic part of everyday school life. Helping Hands Ceylon therefore identified the water requirement as a practical priority for Project SOLRA.

4. Project Intervention

On 11th September 2026, the Helping Hands Ceylon team travelled from Kandy to Kalyanipura to officially hand over Successfully completed water supply intervention to the students,the school and the villagers.

The project established the main components required to bring the system into operation:

- Electrical water pumping motor
- Water storage tank and related infrastructure
- Pipeline connections
- Water taps
- Associated plumbing and implementation work
- Handover of the completed water system to the school

MEMORY LANE

The school community welcomes and get involved with the Helping Hands Ceylon team to enhance the impacts of the project.

5. Educational and Child-Focused Support

Project SOLRA was designed to address both infrastructure and the broader wellbeing of children.

140 students received stationery packs and essential educational supplies. The project also included three child-focused activities.

Healthy Minds by Helping Hands Ceylon

A stress-relief and mindfulness session supporting students' emotional wellbeing and positive engagement.

Therapeutic Art Session

An interactive activity encouraging creativity, self-expression and confidence.

Cyber Security Awareness Programme

An educational session introducing students to safer and more responsible use of digital technology and the internet.

6. Implementation and Reach

Reaching Kalyanipura required substantial travel, coordination and logistics from Kandy to a remote school in Mullaitivu. The project brought together contributors, volunteers, school authorities and local stakeholders around a practical community need.

The project demonstrates the value of responding to clearly identified needs with practical interventions that can support daily life at community level.

7. Outcomes and Significance

The completed water system provides the school with improved access to water for students, staff and villagers, Rural people across Walioya. The intervention addresses a longstanding infrastructure gap and contributes to a healthier and more dignified school environment.

Together with educational supplies and child-focused activities, Project SOLRA provided support across three connected areas: basic infrastructure, education and child wellbeing.

8. Acknowledgement

Helping Hands Ceylon sincerely thanks every contributor, volunteer, school authority, teacher, local stakeholder and foreign/local supporters who helped make Project SOLRA possible.

Their support enabled resources to be brought from Kandy to Mullaitivu and helped turn a longstanding need into a practical intervention.
